

I completely concur with this petition. I do not believe than any person needs to be burdened with the requirement to study an outdated mode, and present day electronics. Morse code must be dropped from the testing, in the same way that knowledge of vacuum tubes were. There's no point in having outdated subject matter tests hold people back from getting an amateur license, when their only interests are PHONE and DIGITAL (PSK31) mode contacts, with other amateur operators around the world via HF.
